MODULE OUTLINE – NURSING CLIENTS WITH DEMENTIA (NCDEM014)

MODULE DESCRIPTION

This module provides a comprehensive overview of the dementias and their requisite nursing care. Reviewing all of the main forms of dementia, the module brings participants up to date with current research in the area. It also provides a full review of person-centred care and its significance for this client population, both in individual and group contexts. The module considers the challenges of dementia care in the case of pre-existing mental health challenges or “illness”, offering a variety of assessment and care planning tools. Central to effective nursing care, the care of the “carers” is examined, alongside what carers need from nurses. Additionally, consideration is given to the impact of drug use in clients with dementia and the issues of Polypharmacy in older adults. Through this module, the learner develops a full understanding of dementia and successful approaches to quality, person-centred, nursing care.

Pre-requisites: Graduation from an entry-level nursing program.

Modes of Instruction and Learning

This module is delivered through online and blended modes of teaching and learning. This includes reading and literature search, short assignments, critiquing and providing responses to various case scenarios. The module also includes tutorial sessions with a nursing consultant.

Assessment and Evaluation

Participants are required to achieve a 'Mastery' grade (70%) in all assessable components of the module in order to receive a certificate of completion. The specific criteria for success will vary with the type of assignment and are indicated in each assignment description. Generally, participants will be able to resubmit once when an assignment is deemed by the Consultant as not meeting some or all of the competencies. The maximum number of resubmissions allowed is three and, even then, only at the instructor's discretion.

Assignments will be graded within a maximum of 14 days. We ask module participants to contact the office and provide a reminder if they have not heard from us by 10 days after submission of an assignment. Exceptions to these timeframes apply under unusual circumstances, such as when a participant registers for a module and then delays starting or begins the module and is then absent for an extended period of time. Additionally, participants are expected to complete and submit assignments progressively over the course of the module; it is not acceptable for a participant to suddenly submit multiple assignments over the course of one or two days. In any of these situations, the normal maximum of 14 days for return of assignments will be extended at the discretion of, and according to the needs of, the consultant. Moreover, in the event that a participant needs to be reinstated in a module (see Attendance and Participation subsection below), return of assignments may be further delayed by any work-related travel the consultant originally had planned in the new period.

Attendance and Participation

The deadline for completing this module is 10 weeks from the date you first log onto the module-specific site. You are expected to be on the site on a regular basis or to indicate to the Consultant/Instructor how you are progressing. Failure to complete this module within the deadline or to maintain regular communication for a prolonged period (one month) could result in your being withdrawn from the online learning centre. A reinstatement fee of $100.00 may be payable should you wish to continue with the module after this time. If you repeat the same failure to maintain communication for a second time, you will be required to pay another reinstatement fee of $100.00. If you repeat the same failure to maintain communication for a third time, or if you are absent for a period of six months without communication (even if this is your first time failing to communicate regularly), you will have to pay the entire module and administration fees over again. Decisions in this regard are at the sole discretion of JCC Inc.
